“ Just thinking about you and my brother this Christmas season. At times life is so very difficult, and there are times when the memories make you smile. Today I smile. I hope you find smiles too.

“ For the Christian, passing through death is really a birth into a new and better world. Those who are left behind should not grieve as if there were no hope. Life is changed, not taken away. Henry will live on in a world more beautiful than we can imagine. He will never be missed, I pray for him everyday.

Love you,

“ Dear Willa, Henry was born into the first half of the siblings and became the big brother. He was always asking how things were and if I needed anything. He made it clear that if I needed help with anything or anyone, I had only to say so. His words were as good as a promise. I didn't see him often in later years, but I knew that he was always there. He will always be so very missed.

“ Hi Willa I will always remember coming to Charleston to visit with Marcia and go next door to see Henry and enjoyed so much being able to talk about repair and wood working projects, we could talk all day. He is missed. Sylvia

“ Dear Willa, I remember Henry as being there whenever I needed him. One day, visiting Marcia, while parking my car the tire hit the sidewalk drain. Of course the sharp corner pierced my tire and the air forcefully seeped out. Henry appeared before I could get out of the car. He changed the tire faster than if he had worked for Gerald's Tire. So Willa, Henry will always be there. sister-in-law, Juanita
